

BRFC - Role Description

Youth Section

Club Coaching Coordinator

The Club Coaching Coordinator liaises with the Youth Chair and Chairs of Senior Men's and Ladies' Playing and is responsible for making sure each team has adequate coaching staff to grow and develop. You will proactively promote the education and development of all the club coaches at Senior and Junior levels.

Ideally, you'll need to be:

Knowledgeable and experienced about the game and capable of recognising good coaching skills
Enthusiastic and persuasive
A strong communicator
Well-organised and resourceful
Approachable and good with people
A good team player
RFU DBS cleared (we will do this for you on production of appropriate documentation)

What you'll do:

Work with the Chairs of Playing and the Youth Chairman to identify, recruit and develop coaches to ensure sufficient and appropriate coaching staff are assigned to each team (including illness cover)
Establish the training needs of club coaches and signpost them to relevant courses and continuing personal development
Take a long-term view that allows coaches to develop with a team over time
Act as a point of contact for the RFU, Constituent Bodies and club coaches
Register your up-to-date contact details on the RFU Game Management System (GMS)
Understand and publicise the RFU coaching courses and local coaching events
Help spread best practice between coaches at different levels
Ensure all new and existing club coaches are adequately mentored and supported
Ensure that appropriate support is given to coaches when requested to specific areas of the game
Design and lead the implementation of a suitable club coach development plan
Gather playing and coaching information from the club to aid national research projects.

How much time it will take up:

Up to 4 hours a week.

What you'll get out of it:

This role directly influences success and the standard of rugby at all levels of the club. Recruiting the right coaches and seeing a team develop under them takes real skill and knowledge of the game.

Contact the Club Chairman if you are interested.
